

Does Your Eye Color Reveal Anything About Your Personality?

Art and Article by Lily Hurst

Believe it or not, scientists have actually done studies on how eye color connects to someone's personality. You're probably thinking, why would they take time to study something that has no connection to personality types whatsoever? I thought the same thing too, until I found an article at <http://www.healthguidance.org/entry/13545/1/What-Your-Eye-Color-Tells-About-You.html>. I decided to read it and although one's personality isn't defined by eye color, it was actually pretty interesting.

This article even admitted that the correlation between eye color and actual personality has very little proven evidence. It's more of a self-fulfilling prophecy. However, if your arm length can determine your future height, why not read about it? People with combined eye colors whether it's amber-brown, blue-hazel, or green-blue are thought to have combined personalities. It was found that those with blue eyes are associated with youthfulness, and lower levels of aggression. Although, it also depends on the shade. For example, those with piercing blue eyes or darker eyes tend have less of an innocent and playful appearance as those with more of an intense color. Therefore, people often think of them as not innocent and more intense than those with a softer eye color.

People with brown eyes are said to be more loyal, though not submissive. Often they are not only perceived as loyal but also exhibit self-confidence, drive, and traits of a natural born leader. It is believed that those with brown eyes often have difficulty sleeping, getting up in the morning, and poorer sleep cycles.

All the people who have green eyes are known to have a more magical look to them because there eye color is so rare. In fact, green is the rarest eye color out there, only 2% of the population has it. Green is actually the result of a mild amount of pigmentation in the eye with a tint of gold. Green-eyed people are said to be fiery with a high energy level.

People out there with hazel eyes are lucky to have such a unique eye color. Some people say that this color can change from green to brown depending on your mood or the light, they are even said to look gold sometimes! Hazel eyes are said to be fun and spontaneous, while the green is seen as a mischievous side. Also, the light shade of brown is thought of as an approachable color.

Lastly, people with grey eyes are known to be the least aggressive and have a wise look to them. Grey eyes are really just a lighter and more gentle shade of blue.

Whatever eye color you have, all colors are beautiful. Your eyes do not necessarily define who you are.

Prince: The Death of a Legend

By: Maddie Weisblatt

Prince Rogers Nelson, better known as Prince, was one of the most famous people alive. Unfortunately, on Thursday, April 21, 2016, he passed away in his hometown of Chanhassen, Minnesota. His airplane made an emergency landing so that he could go to the hospital for extreme pain. He was later seen in a pharmacy buying painkillers over the counter. This is the very last place he was seen.

Prince was famous for his amazing guitar playing, fantastic songs including Purple Rain, When Doves Cry, and While My Guitar Gently Weeps, his movie Purple Rain, and especially his symbol. Prince's symbol (also known as the "love symbol" and pictured above) was said to be a mixture of the symbol for men and the symbol for women. In 1993, he changed his name to the "love symbol" but later changed it back to Prince.

In conclusion, Prince was an iconic superstar who was known all around the world. He was loved by many and paved the way for a lot of young aspiring singers and songwriters as well. He will be greatly missed but his music will live on forever.

Pakka Pets

By Christina S.

Pakka Pets is a virtual pet game that is like a combination of Tamagotchi, Pokemon, and Animal Crossing. You start off with a spotted egg that hatches into a baby pet named Teesprout and depending on how you take care of them they evolve into different Pakkas. There are six different eggs all with different pets and evolutions. If you were to ignore your Pakka completely without killing them they would turn into a Poonai.

You can buy food, medicine, and decorations in the shop and you can mix up certain items into other items with greater stats. There are also a variety of minigames you could play like the one in the movie theater or you can go on a quest in the town. Quest are different based on which Pakka you have. Every time you finish a quest you get a quest coin. Quest coins are used to unlock other places in town like the sewers.

I would rate this game a 10/10 it's extremely adorable and fun to play. It's free to play on an iPhone.

My Mask

by Kyle Jack

I am not what you think me to be
I am simply a courier who is carrying a message.

I speak for those who don't and for those who can't and for those who have been silenced.

I am ashamed of what I have done,
I used to judge
but now that I am older
I understand why these people are in hiding.

Many refer to them as different people as if they are not people at all but I believe that these poor souls are people, angels that have fallen and we must help them get back up.

And those who are prejudiced are the devils who rip off the angel's wings and ground them, but we can help even if it's only a spark we must help those sparks ignite into flames of hope.

Those who are prejudiced are enslaved by their beliefs and do not understand what many go through.

I am not like the others,
I may hide but not like the others.
I am not an angel for my wings were lost a long time ago.

I am simply a boy who has gone through pain and treated with vulgarity my whole life.
Now I speak not for myself but for the hidden,
for the silenced and I am not the only one.

As long as the truth lives, hope burns bright and it will guide the hidden showing them that there is no need to be afraid, that they are just like us.

We are all unique,
we are all human.
We all hide a part of ourselves that we don't want anyone to see.

I have a darkness that is my greatest struggle.
I was chained to the ground for most of my life because of someone I held dear to me but he is gone and even though I miss him I am finally free.

I have shame, I have anger, I have sorrow and that is why I wear a mask.
